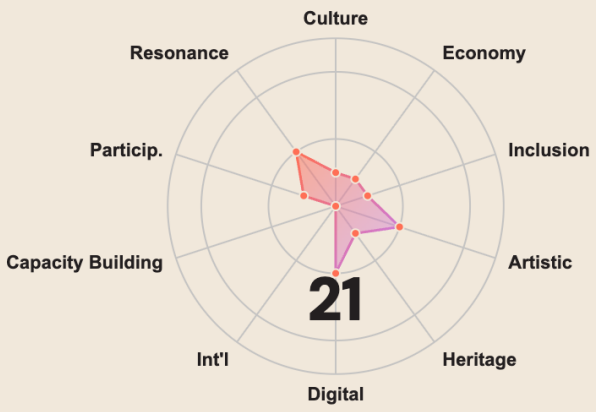
Jam Discipline n1



PROPOSAL SUMMARY

Jam Discipline #1 was a one-day community event held at the State Philharmonia of Armenia in Yerevan on March 22, 2025. The project created a platform for audiovisual experimentation where 16 active participants connected sound, light, code, and moving images into live, temporary systems. Artists and practitioners collaborated in real-time jam sessions exploring the intersection of media art, sound, music, and light. The event aimed to foster creative experimentation and community building within Armenia's emerging audiovisual and media art scene, operating on a modest budget of $1,000 USD.

CRITERIA SCORES

SORTED BY SCORE DESC

4	Artistic Quality	2/5
6	Digitality	2/5
10	Resonance	2/5
1	Cultural Vitality	1/5
2	Creative Economy	1/5
3	Social Inclusion	1/5
5	Heritage & Environment	1/5
9	Participation	1/5
7	Internationality	0/5

1. Cultural Vitality

1/5

- ● Clear thematic domain (audiovisual experimentation) identified
- ● Institutional partner (State Philharmonia of Armenia) named

- ○ No contextual anchors, problem definition, or audience relevance for theme
- ○ No differentiation mechanism or cultural significance for claimed novelty
- ○ No involvement mechanisms or co-creation processes with local partner
- ○ Artistic research layer entirely absent

2. Creative Economy

1/5

- ● Completed event with documented participant count and venue partnership

- ○ No revenue model, cost structure, or economic sustainability logic
- ○ No employment creation, paid roles, or job potential articulated
- ○ No distribution channels, market access, or creative value chain integration
- ○ No financial innovation or novel funding mechanisms present

3. Social Inclusion

1/5

- ● Bilingual project context (Armenian/English) provides foundation for multilingual expansion
- ● Feedback collection mechanism (5/10 score) indicates some audience engagement infrastructure

- ○ No marginalized target groups identified or inclusion design present
- ○ Zero accessibility provisions documented despite physical venue event
- ○ Participatory format claimed but no co-creation or engagement mechanisms described
- ○ Multilingual claim unsupported by translation deliverables or cultural mediation

4. Artistic Quality

2/5

- ● Contemporary forms (sound, light, code, moving images) are clearly stated and align with experimental audiovisual practice
- ● Institutional venue partner (State Philharmonia of Armenia) suggests credible infrastructure support
- ● Documentation links (photo bank, Instagram) indicate some post-event outputs, though not accessible in materials

- ○ No curatorial logic, artistic rationale, or production detail provided for the concept
- ○ Team structure, roles, and track record entirely absent — cannot assess competence
- ○ Critical potential not addressed: no discourse triggers, public program, or reflection mechanisms

5. Heritage & Environment

1/5

- ● Use of established cultural venue (State Philharmonia) provides institutional foundation

- ○ No engagement with intangible heritage or Armenian cultural traditions
- ○ Site choice appears logistical rather than conceptually motivated by place
- ○ Complete absence of environmental or sustainability considerations
- ○ Generic experimental format with no visible connection to local context

6. Digitality

2/5

- ● Strong digital documentation with multiple verified artifacts (Google Drive, Instagram, photo bank)
- ● Clear evidence of post-event archival and visual materials

- ○ No technological innovation detail or validation beyond claims
- ○ Digital accessibility limited to retrospective social media; no live streaming or remote access
- ○ Complete absence of data/interactivity components
- ○ No structured digital exhibition or distribution strategy

7. Internationality

0/5

- ● Bilingual delivery (Armenian/English) shows basic accessibility consideration

- ○ Zero international partnerships or cross-border institutional ties
- ○ No documented multicultural representation among participants or content
- ○ No cross-cultural exchange mechanisms or reciprocal engagement
- ○ No transferability design or replication potential demonstrated

8. Capacity Building

0/5

- ● Clear artistic concept connecting multiple media disciplines (sound, light, code, moving images)
- ● Partnership with established cultural institution (State Philharmonia of Armenia)
- ● Documented media outputs and photo archive from the event

- ○ No educational or capacity-building components in a one-day performance event
- ○ Absence of skills transfer mechanisms or learning objectives for participants
- ○ No institutional relationship development beyond single-event venue partnership
- ○ Complete lack of sustainability infrastructure or continuation plans

9. Participation

1/5

- ● Jam session format inherently supports active co-creation and experimentation
- ● Feedback mechanism was implemented, showing some attempt at dialogue

- ○ No documented engagement design or facilitation plan
- ○ Low feedback score (5/10) suggests limited dialogue quality or depth
- ○ Process transparency completely absent from materials
- ○ No evidence of inclusive participation design or accessibility considerations

10. Resonance

2/5

- ● Strong visual documentation via Instagram and photo bank demonstrates basic media presence
- ● State Philharmonia partnership provides institutional credibility and venue prestige
- ● Completed event with documented participant count (16) shows execution capacity

- ○ No media strategy, press partnerships, or narrative packaging beyond basic social posting
- ○ Risk assessment and preparedness protocols completely absent despite experimental format
- ○ Continuation potential undeveloped — 'platform' language not backed by roadmap or commitments
- ○ Reputational value limited to venue partnership; no broader recognition or status lift documented
